

Ribbons in the Sky is a fictional account of the Biblical story of Noah's ark, told from the perspective of the animals. The animals in Noah's ark teach a wonderful example, to children and adults alike, about the character and will of God, the Creator of all things. Through this book, God's everlasting love and His great mercy are displayed, as well as His judgment. By interacting with these animals, you become a part of the experience in Noah's ark. The book will undoubtedly challenge your worldview and help you adopt a Biblical worldview before you finishing reading it to yourself or your children.

Ribbons in the Sky will walk you through the entire ark experience from the time the ark was filled to the end of the Flood. It will allow you to not only get to know the animals of the ark but also Noah's family. The interactions between the people and the animals on this great boat imitate true-to-life relationships we all experience: love, desire, jealousy, deceit, vindictiveness, pride, hatred, and courage all surface in the characters in Ribbons.

In this book, the thoughts, actions, and adventures of the main character, Peesh, on Noah's ark are chronicled during the days of the Flood as told in the Old Testament of the Bible. Chapter one begins with Esphe and Phese, a sheep couple who are the parents of the main character. The story unfolds as the animals are guided to board the ark where most of the story takes place. They and their son realize they have been specially chosen by God to survive the Flood through the ark Noah and his sons built. Personalities and motives are revealed as Peesh lives out his life journey, starting at his birth and continuing during his time on the great boat as he mingles with the other creatures: human and animal. His influence and purpose incite joy, sadness, love, and hate in the people and the animals alike, but he endures through every hardship.
